DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 47 and 54 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1 and 9 of U.S. Patent No. 6,346,551. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because instant claim 47 would merely be considered the genus, or a genus, that claim 1 of the U.S. Patent is derived from. Instant claim 47 is drawn to the function of molecules, while claim 1 of the U.S. Patent is drawn to the function of a substance. This is not a patentable distinction as substances are made up of molecules.

With regard to instant claim 54, the claim limits the independent claim to the method being thrombolysis. This is not a patentable distinction from claim 9 of the U.S. Patent, which limits the independent claim therein to the method being for inhibition of coagulation and/or fibrinolysis, since both the instant claim, and the claim in the U.S. Patent, essentially deal with the removal or dissolution of blood clots.

A 23-way restriction was made in the parent application, 08/813,842 (US 6,346,551), that includes the subject matter of instant claim 47 in all of the groupings; however, the examiner, at the time of said restriction, did not state that the subject matter of instant claim 47 (claim 48 in the parent application) was patentably distinct in each of the groupings. Accordingly, the examiner finds it proper to have made the above obviousness-type double patenting rejection.

Claims 48-53 and 55-68 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
